

A new view on VALUE

Jim Becker, President of River Metals Recycling, at the new corporate headquarters located in the Toeppen Executive Center, Crescent Springs, Kentucky.

River Metals Recycling recycles ferrous and nonferrous scrap metal products. In the process of making things “new”, they add value to whatever they touch. River Metals Recycling’s President, Jim Becker, and his team saw similar value when they chose to relocate their company headquarters to the Toeppen Executive Center in Crescent Springs, Kentucky.

Built by Toeppen Companies, the new Toeppen Executive Center office is bigger than the previous one, has more room for growth, allows easier access to restaurants, and offers the best return for their leasing dollar.

Since they work for the largest and oldest scrap metal processor in Kentucky and the region, Jim and his team felt it was good to work with another icon in the area known for quality, integrity, and longevity. They were pleased that Toeppen got the office ready on time and on budget, with no problems. Plus they all agree, the view is definitely better!
