

Buildings & BAGELS

John Marx, aka "Bagel Man", Owner of Marx Hot Bagels Located in Toeppen's Keystone Plaza in Blue Ash, OH

Buildings and bagels, what do they have in common? When it's Toeppen Companies and Marx Hot Bagels, quite a lot actually! Both use old world standards to create a superior product and both embrace new ideas to better serve their customers.

In 1988 John Marx, owner of Marx Hot Bagels, suggested the Blue Ash site for his third bagel shop. Toeppen Companies' Matth Toeppen responded by building the Keystone Plaza. For the man who rolled his bagels by hand every day, Marx liked teaming up with the hard-working builder who shared his passion for quality.

Today Marx ships to grocery stores all over the tri-state and offers a variety of fresh products daily. And the former cabinet maker, Toeppen, and his sons have grown their company into a multi-million dollar development business with sites from Wilmington, OH to Crittendon, KY. It seems obvious then, if you need retail, office, or industrial space, see Toeppen. But if you're in the mood for some hot bagels with world-famous vegetable cream cheese spread, head for Marx. In both cases you'll be glad you did!
